1 Overview

This document will provide information to familiarize you with Radware training facilities located in the United States.

Information about overall Training Policies is available for download from the Training section of Radware's website at www.radware.com/.

For additional Radware Training & Certification information, please contact training@radware.com.

2 Pre-requisites

Training courses are intended for technical personnel responsible for the design, implementation, and support of Radware-based APSolute Application Delivery Solutions. Familiarity with IP networking, DNS, HTTP, and other internetworking concepts is recommended.

All attendees are required to bring their own laptops. The laptop should be equipped with a serial connector or a USB-serial converter. Students will use well-known applications such as PDF Reader, VNC, Telnet, SSH and possibly other Radware-proprietary apps. Therefore, it is also important to have administrative rights on your laptop.

For any additional pre-requisites by course, please visit the 'Course Descriptions' area of the online Training center at <http://www.radware.com/Support/>.

3 Class Hours & Breaks

Unless otherwise indicated by your trainer, classes are scheduled local time between 9:00am and 5:00pm with a morning and optional afternoon break. A one-hour lunch is allotted daily. Due to various diet restrictions, however, you must provide your own lunch.

At the Instructor's discretion, class hours may differ on the final day of instruction, based on class size and previous knowledge of students.
